So what are B classes?

■ By Robin Nuttall

You will now compete in A classes at each level until you attain the title for that level. Once you have the title (let's say Novice), you will be able to EITHER move to Novice B OR move up to Open A.

Once you attain your Open title from Open A, you will EITHER be able to move to Open B OR to Senior A. But also, if you wish, you can move DOWN to Novice B. In other words, once you attain a title at a level, you must go into B class for that level or move up (can't move up for Master of course). But also, once you have attained a title at a level you can ALWAYS compete in B classes at that level. So if you have a dog that is struggling in Master, you can move back down to Senior B.

In all B classes, it takes 10 Qs to attain a title, and that title will be an X title (except in Master). So 10 Novice B Qs = RATNX.

In all B classes, there is one set of placement ribbons for all heights combined. No placements by height.

In Master, you must move to B after you achieve your RATM. RATCH and RATCHX will be from B. At this time I am not implementing time limits for RATCH and RATCHX. We will explore that for the next rule change.

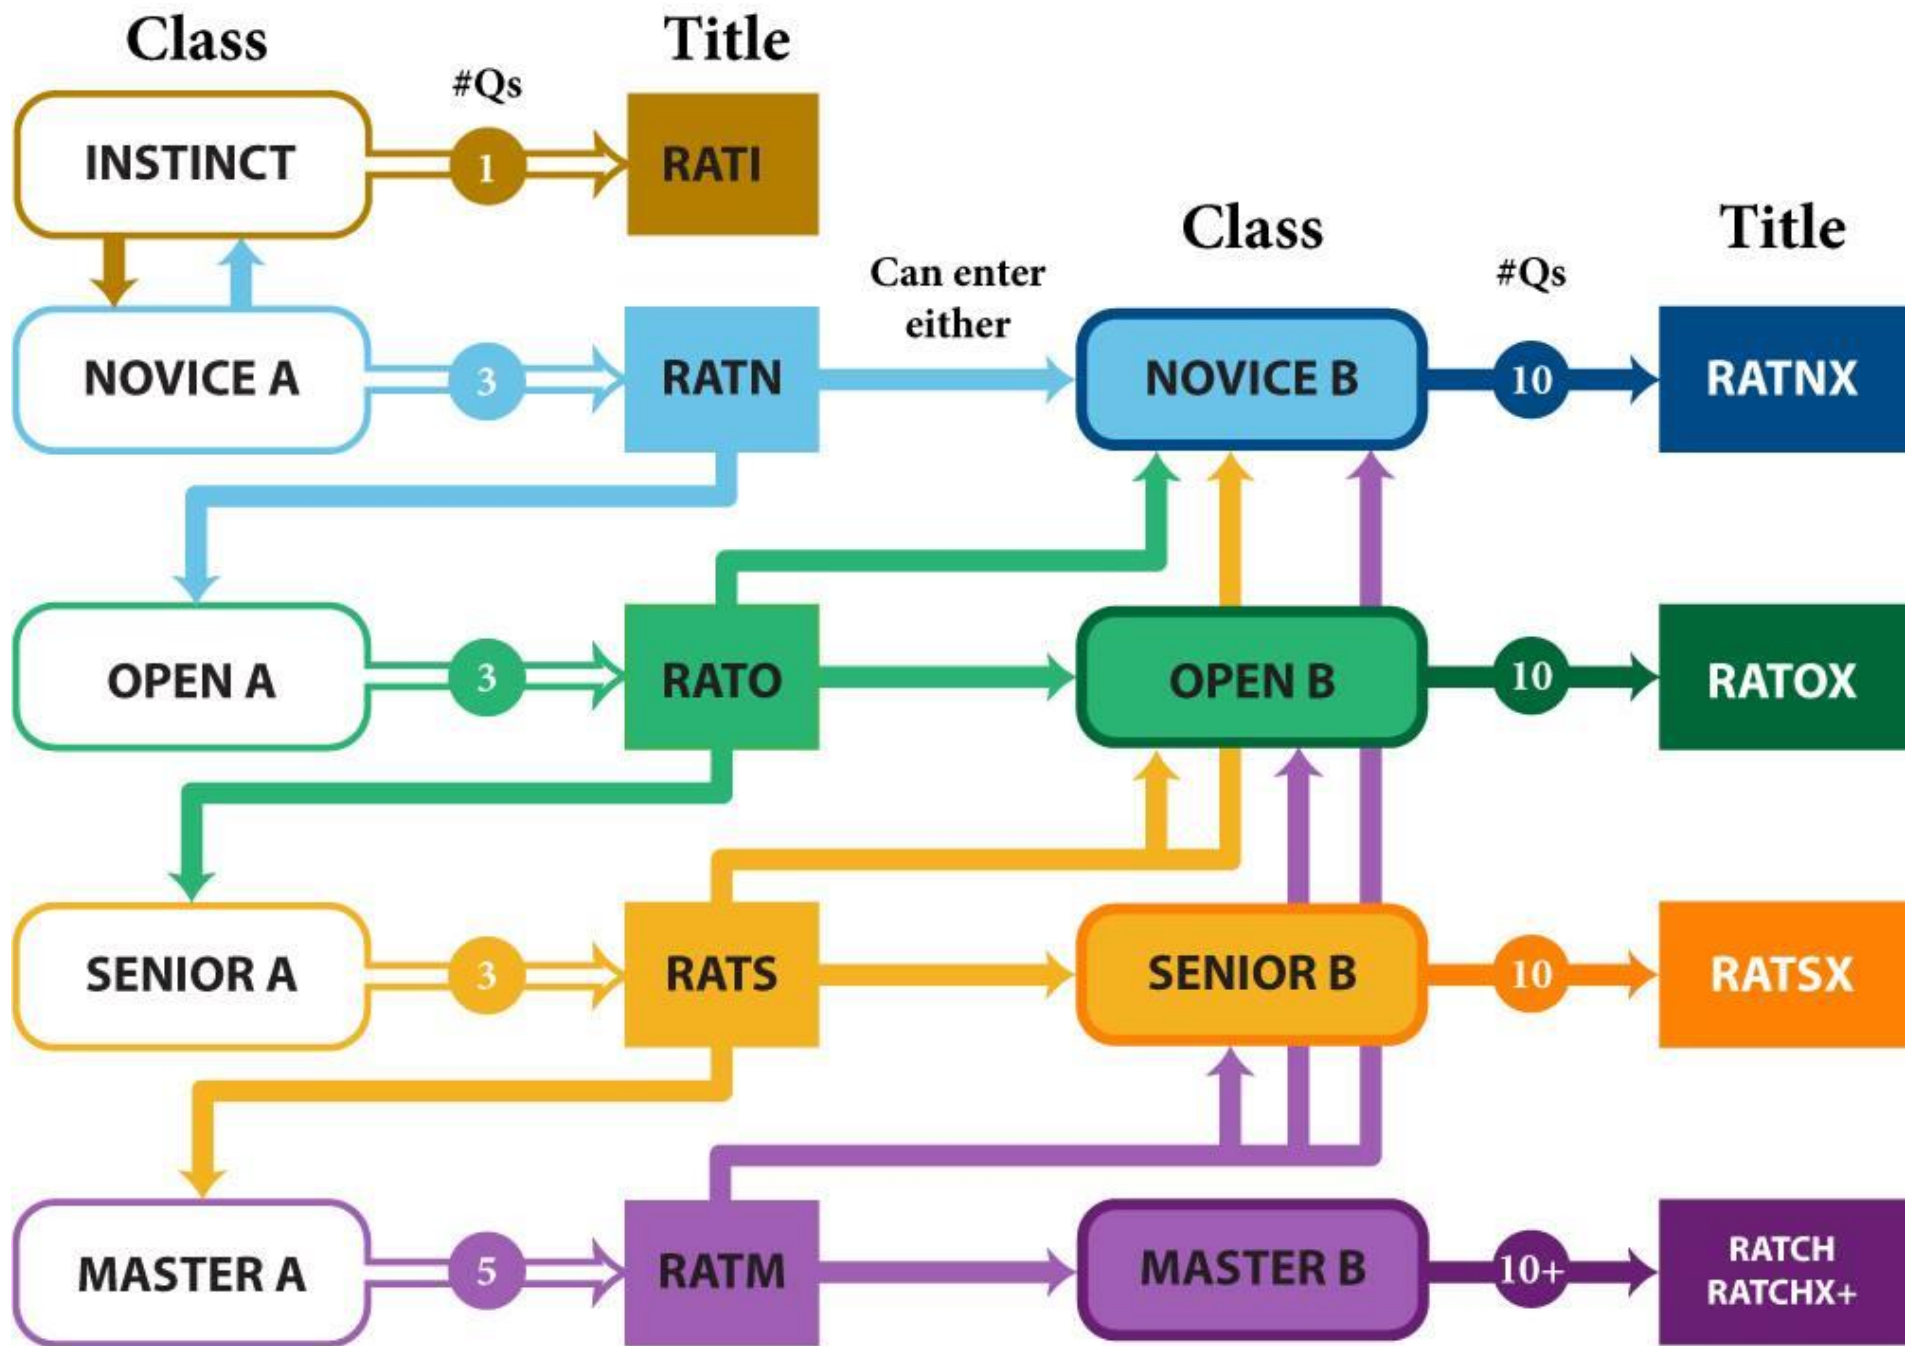

A and B dogs can be blinded together, there will not be separate blinding for A vs B.

You cannot switch between A classes and B classes in a weekend of trials. You may move up or move from A to B within your class if you attain a new title. But you cannot, say, enter Master A one day and Senior B the next.

I have re-uploaded the rules to the website and the changes are now highlighted yellow.

See the progression chart on the next page for further explanation of the “B” classes.

If you're unsure what class to enter, please email the Trial Secretary at agilitymom62@yahoo.com for assistance.
